

Anders Johnsson, VP Sales

Anders has 16 years of experience working in education technology, specifically with IT security and web filtering solutions. He co-founded a K-12 web filtering company in 2004 with a large presence in over 15 states and unprecedented customer retention. Anders joined Securly in 2014, and brings with him a strong motivation to help school IT staff, a technical background, and a passion for business leadership.

"I chose to work for Securly because of its strong commitment not only to technology innovation but also to student safety. Being part of a company pioneering a game-changing solution for student safety and productivity seemed like a thrill of a lifetime for me. I love that we hire the best talent we can find, and that people are committed and passionate about the vision for growth, as well as saving children's lives – we have a higher purpose in what we are doing."
